TRAIN CRASHED INTO HAND CAR

Clyde Dishinger Seriously Injured in Accident This Morning on Big Four Railroad.

SECTION MEN WERE RUN DOWN

Failed to Hear Approaching Engine
Until Almost on Them—Other Two Jumped.

WILL PROBABLY DIE.
The condition of Clyde Dishinger, who was injured in a railroad accident this morning was so low at a late hour this afternoon that physicians had given up hope of his recovery. He rallied for a brief time shortly after noon and then became unconscious and will probably die.

Clyde Dishinger was seriously and perhaps fatally injured this morning shortly after seven o'clock, when the hand car on which he and his fellow section men, Walter and Frank Dishinger, were riding, was run down by a Big Four work train about a mile north of the city. The accident was a peculiar one and that all the men were not killed is considered miraculous.

Clyde was the worst injured of the three and for a time it was feared he had suffered a fractured skull, but later developments showed that such was not the case. He was rendered unconscious and remained so for many hours and at a late hour this afternoon was in a semi-stupor. He received a heavy blow on the head and the scalp was torn loose from the forehead to the back part of the head. A deep cut was inflicted over his left eye and his body was badly bruised. Mr. Dishinger was removed to his home, 830 North Arthur street where he was attended by Dr. J. C. Seton and Dr. J. G. Lewis. At first the physicians expressed little hope for his recovery as it was believed the skull was fractured. It was later found that such was not the case, and unless something unexpected develops, it is stated that he has a good chance of recovery. The other two men escaped with only a few bruises.

The accident occurred on a curve in the railroad about one mile north of the city. The section men were on their way to work and failed to hear the train coming. The work train was backing north with the engine in front. It is said that the train was running light and was making fast time. The men on the hand car had their caps down over their ears and as the wind was blowing from the north or northwest they did not hear the train approaching in the rear. The first the men knew of their danger was from a shadow of the engine cast over the hand car. Walter and Frank Dishinger were standing on the outer edges of the car and when they saw the train bearing down on their frail craft, gave the alarm and leaped.

Clyde was in the center of the hand car and between the handles and before he could jump the crash occurred. He was hurled several feet in the air and that he was not killed instantly, is said to be a wonder. The other two men were bruised and cut by the fall to the ground. The hand car was demolished. It is said that if the front of the engine instead of the tender had hit the hand car, the chances are that Dishinger would have been killed instantly. That the train crew failed to see the hand car was due to the sharp curve and when the crew did see the men, the train was too close to stop. They say that the accident was unavoidable on their part.

The three section men are brothers, and Walter is the foreman of the gang. All have been in the employ of the Big Four for a long time and this was their first accident. Dr. J. C. Seton, the company's physician was called to the scene of the accident and removed Clyde to his home. The other men did not require medical attention.

CREW IS EXONERATED

Shelby County Coroner Finds I. & C. is Not Responsible For Death.

Dr. M. M. Wells, coroner of Shelby county, has filed his verdict in the sudden death of Mitchell Ham, an old soldier who was killed by an Indianapolis & Cincinnati traction car on November 8, while crossing the interurban tracks at Fairland. Four witnesses were examined and a verdict of accidental death was returned, the traction employes being released from all blame. The verdict stated that Ham's death was due to his negligence.

I. & C. CAR RUNS DOWN WORKMAN

John Cronin Hit by Interurban and Instantly Killed When he Failed to Hear its Approach.

ACCIDENT IN INDIANAPOLIS

John Cronin, a workman of St. Louis, was run down and killed instantly by a westbound Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction Company's car at the outskirts of Indianapolis last evening, shortly after six o'clock and instantly killed. Cronin was walking on the track and failed to hear the car coming from behind. His body was rolled several feet after the car hit him and was terribly mangled.

Cronin had been employed at a construction camp near Indianapolis, according to the Indianapolis Star, and was returning to Indianapolis with a fellow workman, William Kennedy. Kennedy told the Indianapolis police that he heard the car coming just in time to leap from the track. He shouted a warning to Cronin, but it was too late. George Harriman of Indianapolis, the motorman in charge of the car, said that he did not see Cronin until it was too late to stop.

HEARING IS TO BE HELD HERE

State Railroad Commission Today
Decides to Conduct Investigation of Depots in Court House.

DATE IS CHANGED TO FRIDAY

Is Done so as Not to Inconvenience so Many People—New Site For
C. H. & D.

This morning the Indiana State Railroad Commission decided to change the date of the hearing on the two petitions, filed by Rushville men for a new C. H. & D. and a new Pennsylvania depot, to Friday, November 24. The hearing will be held in the court house here instead of in the Commission's rooms in the State house in Indianapolis. The date first set for the hearing was one week from today, the change meaning that it will be just one day later.

It was expected that a letter from the State Commission would be received by Sheriff Clata Behout this afternoon, directing him to prepare for the coming of the Commission. The local petitioners will be notified also in a letter from the Commission of the change in date of the hearing.

The place was changed by the Commission so that the true state of affairs could better be learned. Judge Woods, a member of the Commission, said this morning that the Commission deemed it advisable to hold court here so that more witnesses could be questioned and conditions of the two stations could be ascertained to a certainty. Another reason for the changing the place of the hearing was the fact that the Commission does not desire to inconvenience so many Rushville citizens. It was thought that it might work a hardship on some local residents to go to Indianapolis and also that as representative a body of men would not appear in Indianapolis as in Rushville.

The Commission also notified the general superintendents of both the C. H. & D. and the Pennsylvania railway companies this morning to be present for the hearing. They had been asked to attend the hearing in Indianapolis.

It is being talked here that the C. H. & D. will have to seek a new location for its station if the Commission orders it to build a new one which thing, it is believed, the Commission will do. The Commission found four years ago that a new C. H. & D. station was needed here and it ordered one, but the depot was never built.

Lawyers say that it is contrary to the State law to build a railroad station at the intersection of two or more railroads. That it is not a feasible plan to do such a thing is evidenced by the accident which occurred here eight years ago and which is the sole reason for the C. H. & D. station being in the condition that it is today.

INGRATITUDE, SAYS ITALIAN

After Promising to Forgive and Forget Thomas Pettie Files Affidavit Against Joe Palmer.

CHARGING ASSAULT ON WIFE

Italian is Set Free After Pleading
Guilty Before Squire Kratzer—
Faulty Affidavit.

As a fine sample of ingratitude, Thomas Pettie of 824 West Second street, after squaring things with Joe Palmer, the Italian fruit vender of Second street, whom he charged with having assaulted his wife yesterday morning and who "set 'em up" to Pettie with a drink at a saloon across the street and presented him with a sack of bananas, within a half hour after that filed an affidavit against Palmer charging an assault on Mrs. Pettie. The fruit vender says that Pettie told him he would forgive and forget when he left his place of business and then went straightway and did the opposite.

Palmer was arrested last evening by Chief of Police McAllister and arraigned before Squire Kratzer in the justice of the peace court this morning. Palmer retained J. T. Arbuckle, who at the outset of the trial moved that the affidavit be quashed for the reason that it did not bear the signature of Donald Smith, who is acting as prosecutor in the absence of Dennis O'Neil. The motion of Mr. Arbuckle was sustained and Palmer was set free. He was a happy man, but he was not to continue in that state long.

It was not long before another affidavit had been drawn correctly and once more Joe Palmer was in the toils. This time the trial was held and Joe pleaded not guilty to the charge of assaulting Pettie's wife. He had character witnesses to show that he had never been in trouble before during his nineteen years' stay in the United States. It was with difficulty that the squire understood the gesticulating Italians. He understood them well enough, however, to find that Joe Palmer was not guilty and he was set free for the second time.

"I have never ben in de troobel since I have ben in dis cuntry," cried the exasperated Joe this morning when he found that he had been arrested a second time. "For nineteen long year I have ben here and never was arrested before. I went dis man's house to collect a bill and she run me out with a razor. Then I take this man to a bar, lay down a dollar and tella them to gife him what he wants. He take a drink of wine off me and then file de affidavit against me."

Joe says that he went to the home of Pettie yesterday afternoon to collect a bill for fruit sold to the Petties. He declares that he insisted on collecting it and that Mrs. Pettie grabbed a razor and started after him. Joe explained with many gestures that he would take no chances with a woman and he left very hastily. Neighbors told the police that they saw Joe leave the house in a manner not calculated to be slow by any means. Joe asserts that he went to the Pettie home last Saturday to collect, but the money was refused him.

It may be remembered that Pettie and his wife went to police station yesterday afternoon and told the police of the alleged assault which the Italian made on Mrs. Pettie yesterday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Pettie and the police went to the fruit store to identify the man who was said to have attacked Mrs. Pettie, but the Italian proved to be a diplomat. His suave manner and humble actions won Pettie over in a minute and it did not take much argument for Palmer to lead Pettie to a nearby bar where he bought him a drink. Embracing one another, the two came from the saloon and Joe presented Pettie with a sack of bananas as a token of his friendship. During the course of their conversation it was discovered that they both belonged to the Modern Woodmen lodge which served to bind the two more closely. Pettie departed happy and with the declaration that he would forgive, according to the Italian.

ROBBED MILROY DEPOT LAST NIGHT

Broken Into Second Time Within Two Months—Got Overcoat and
$2.18 in Change.

The Big Four depot at Milroy was robbed last night for the second time within the past two months. The cash drawer was broken into and all the change, amounting to about $2.18 was taken. An overcoat belonging to the agent, Joe S. Michael was also taken. The police here were notified this morning and it was hoped to locate the thieves by the overcoat, as there was a hole burned in one sleeve.

As on the former occasions the waiting room door was broken in, then the ticket office window was smashed giving free access to the inner office. The robbery was not discovered until this morning. The lights were burning and papers and books were scattered all over the floor. No one living close to the depot heard the noise. A freight train came north from there shortly after 12 o'clock and it is the opinion of the police that the thieves caught the train and escaped. The depot has been entered several times but nothing of great value has ever been taken. The last time the station was entered in September. On that occasion about the same amount was taken as last night.

MERCHANTS HAVE MUCH BUSINESS

Will Consider Plans For Christmas
Carnival at Regular Meeting to be Held Tonight.

WOULD DECORATE THE CITY

Among other things which will be considered by the members of the Rushville Retail Merchants Association when they convene in regular session in the court house tonight, will be plans for the Christmas carnival which has been proposed and talked among the business men.

A Christmas carnival has been advocated among business men for the last few weeks. It is a part of the plan to decorate the city in greenery and other decorations appropriate to the holiday season. It is thought that this method would give the city a festive appearance and would assist much in stimulating the good will and good fellowship which is incident to the holidays.

Merchants have pointed out that the new pedestal lights make ideal ground for arranging decorations. It is thought that appropriate decorations could be strung from the lights and arranged on them. The effect after the lights are turned on at night it is thought, would be very pleasing. It is likely that some definite steps in that direction will be taken tonight.

VANDALS DAMAGE GLENWOOD HOME

Break Window Panes and Demolish
Doors in Property of John F.
Mapes, Retiring Marshal.

HE CAN NOT ACCOUNT FOR IT

Thinks Perhaps Man to Whom it Was Rented Was Not Wanted in Neighborhood.

Marauders almost demolished a house belonging to John F. Mapes of Glenwood some time last Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning. The property was badly damaged and will require considerable repair before it is in the condition that it was once.

Mr. Mapes says that the house was damaged because he had rented it to a working man named Garrison, who, it seems, was not wanted in Glenwood by some persons. Garrison is employed in Glenwood and wished to move into it from the place near Glenwood where he had been residing in order to be nearer his work.

All of the window panes in the house were broken with stones and the two front doors were broken down. The property was otherwise mutilated by the visitors of the night. Rocks were thrown against it and it will be necessary for Garrison to postpone his change of residence for a time at least.

Mr. Mapes can advance no other reason for the act than that certain persons whom he will not name did not care to have Garrison in the neighborhood. The owner of the property says that he knows nothing to the detriment of Garrison and that he has the reputation of being a law abiding citizen.

Mr. Mapes taboos the idea that anyone should wish to destroy the property just because it was his. He says that he has lived in Glenwood for forty years and that he has never done damage to anyone in any manner. He declares that he would like very much to have evidence to prove just who did commit the depredation.

The property damaged is located in the west end of State street in Glenwood and had been used by the owner to store goods until it was rented to Garrison. Mr. Mapes is the retiring marshal of Glenwood.

FIELD EXAMINERS HERE

Are Examining Accounts of Township
Trustees For One Year Back.

Two field examiners are working in the court house once more after the county has been free of them for some time. They are John Joyce and William Morris and they are examining the accounts of the township trustees of Rush county for the last year. Examiners have worked here rather extensively since the State accounting law has been in effect, but no shortage to amount to anything has ever been discovered and proved to be true.

What "Cooking in Paper Bags" Does

IT does away with the cleaning of greasy pots and pans.

As bags are sealed when contents are cooking, it keeps cooking odors from filling house or apartment.

It conserves the health-giving juices of meats and the life-giving salts of vegetables that escape wholly or in part under the present system of pot-and-pan cooking.

Because of this fact it makes every dish more savory and nutritious, and it is economical, the food weighing practically the same when drawn from, as when put in, the oven.

It means quicker cooking, and, hence, lowering of gas or coal bills.

It saves time and anxiety—you don't have to keep looking at the food from time to time as it is cooking to see if everything is all right. You just put the food in the oven, shut the door, and at the set time take it out, done to a turn.

If food is left in the oven five or ten minutes longer than time called for it will not be harmed in the least, as is likely to be the case under present system of cooking.

A housewife, intelligently employing Soyer's paper-bag cookery, can put an entire meal in the oven, and then, secure in the knowledge that it cannot burn or come out underdone or overdone, go about other duties, or pleasure, until the minute arrives when the meal is to be served.

The Chicago Daily News tells all about Soyer's "Cooking in Paper Bags." It prints every day a descriptive article, telling just how to do the thing, and gives new recipes every day for cooking the every-day meals by the new system.

MANY WOMEN ASPIRE TO BECOME SLEUTHS

No End of Applicants for Proposed New Job.

Indianapolis, Nov. 16.—Seeking positions on the police force as detectives, twenty-two women, the majority of whom were young and unmarried, but several the mothers of two or three children, applied to Mayor Shank. The mayor had offered to appoint two of the police matrons to act as detectives, but they declined and notice of this caused the rush to his office.

The idea of appointing women detectives grew out of the recent murder of Dr. Helene Knabe and the inability of the male members of the department to find the murderer. Suggestions from a number of women that female detectives would be better equipped in such cases than males led the mayor to suggest such appointments. But the rush to his office was so great that he slipped out by a back door and told his secretary to send all inquirers to the police department.

In the state of Durango many bands of brigands and alleged revolutionists are causing disturbances. In the city of Durango a large store of arms was found in one of the principal bank buildings, and this discovery led to the arrest of many prominent citizens.

VIOLATIONS OF PURE FOOD LAW

Hundreds of Indictments Returned at Terre Haute.

CHICAGO PACKERS ARE IN BAD

Ten Days' Investigation of Conditions Surrounding Food Supply of Terre Haute, Revealed Something Like Four Hundred Violations of the State Pure Food Law, and Prosecution of Chicago Packing Firms Will Follow.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 16.—After ten days' investigation by the local prosecutor and an agent of the Indiana pure food department, it is announced that something like 400 violations of the pure food law have been committed here by Chicago packing firms and indictments have been secured against them. The information on which the indictments are based was gained from local dealers when confronted with the sale of impure foods or foods not labeled according to law. It is said that during the last few weeks more than 10,000 dozen of storage eggs have been shipped into the local market by outside firms and corporations and have been sold as the fresh article at enormous profit. Two local dealers have pleaded guilty to selling unlabeled storage eggs and paid fines.

DIDN'T STAY LONG

"French Tailor" Tutor Left When He Got Women's Money.

Muncie, Ind., Nov. 16.—From fifty to seventy-five Muncie, women, some of them prominent, are said to have contributed to a foreign looking man wearing a black goatee, about $1,000 in the last week or ten days, in order to learn how to be a "French tailor." The stranger, with a French accent, represented himself to be a Parisian tailor, and evidently he knew something about women's tailoring, for he formed classes here and succeeded in impressing Muncie women in their first lesson that he was able to make a Worth or Paquin out of any of them in a course of lessons. After demonstrating that he really knew the tailoring business, he succeeded easily in collecting from his patrons sums of $5 to $25 each as advance payments, according to the size of his patron's pocketbook. The police say the man has disappeared.

Slow Work Getting Jury.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 16.—The third extra venire was exhausted in the John W. Poole murder case and the fourth venire of twenty men was ordered. The wedding out process employed in selecting a jury to try Poole for the murder of Joseph Kempner, resulted in many men being excused. A number were excused because they said they believed Poole to be insane and others because they had formed an opinion as to his guilt or innocence.

"Treed" For Two Hours.

Nashville, Ind., Nov. 16.—George Wayman, a farmer, had a narrow escape from serious injury when he was held prisoner in a tree for two hours by an angry bull. Wayman was walking through his orchard when the animal pursued him and forced him to take refuge in a tree. The animal stood guard for two hours when it was driven away by Mr. Wayman's sons.

Caught at a Crossing.

Clinton, Ind., Nov. 16.—When Eugene Todd, aged twenty-three, a miner, drove an empty wagon on the railroad tracks at Atherton, four miles south of here, a train struck his wagon, demolishing it and literally grinding the driver to pieces. The depot and an orchard obscured Todd's view of the tracks.

Notorious Burglars Sentenced.

SAYS FLAG MUST WAVE IN BREEZE

New Law Makes it Mandatory For Old Glory to be Placed on School Buildings.

IF THE WEATHER PERMITS

Not Likely That Law Will be Obeyed

General—Most Schools Wave Flag.

In a law that local attorneys say conflicts with itself in its two sections the last session of the general assembly provided that every school building in the county should display a flag. The only time when the American flag is not displayed is when school is not in session or when the weather is inclement.

The first section of the flag law provides that school officials shall provide a flag upon a petition from the patrons but the second section provides that the flag shall always be displayed. This is taken to be mandatory and if the law is carefully followed the school officials will have to purchase American flags no matter whether there is a petition or not. It is said that a great many of the schools in Rush county already have

The Greatest Stove Ever Made For Burning Hard Coal

Will Be Demonstrated on Saturday, November 18th

By Mr. Howard Who Will Burn All Sizes of Hard Coal and Prove to the Public that the

SEARCHLIGHT STOVE BURNS THE GASES AS WELL AS THE COAL ITSELF

Something No Other So-Called Baseburner on Earth Will Do

READ MR. HOWARD'S SIGNED STATEMENT: "Demonstration will be made of the Searchlight Stove in front of John B. Morris' Store, burning all sizes of hard coal and positively consuming the poisonous gases and converting it into heat. I positively guarantee that if the J. B. Howard Combustion damper (patent sustained three different times by the United States Court) is set before going to bed at night, not one degree of variation in temperament will be noticed when you get up in the morning, no matter what the temperature outdoors may be.

$5,000.00 Will Be Deposited with John B. Morris, said amount to be paid to any manufacturer or dealer in stoves who will produce a so-called hard coal Base Burner, Saturday, November 18, 1911, that will burn all the ingredients of anthracite coal, such as carbon monoxide, commonly called poisonous gases, or will heat the same amount of space, at the same cost as the Searchlight does. (Signed) J. W. Howard.

NOTE.—Mr. Howard last year made the same offer as above, wherever the Searchlight was exhibited, defying anyone to produce a stove that would accomplish what the Searchlight does, but no one came forward to win the $5,000.00, proving conclusively that there was not another stove like the Searchlight. It remains to be seen if one has been constructed since last year.

The Hot Blast Air Tight FLORENCE

PATENTED JUNE 13, 1899

Patent Sustained by U. S. Circuit Court, July 5, 1905. Patent Sustained by U. S. Court of Appeals, March 6, 1908. Beware of imitations and unscrupulous people who claim to have a stove like or just as good as the Florence. Do not be deceived by such false claims and find it out when too late. Examine the Florence carefully before you buy.

NO SMOKE. NO SOOT. NO DIRT. NO CLINKERS. EVERYTHING IS CONSUMED.

At the End of a Season's Use With Soft Coal There Will Be No Soot in the Pipe or Flue

Will be demonstrated the 18th in front of our store. Be here. See the claims made for THIS STOVE proven BEYOND A DOUBT. We give you a chance to know just what you are buying before you INVEST A DOLLAR

The only jointless leg bottom and base with full radiator and large ash pan that is on the market or has ever been made in the history of the stove industry.

The jointless leg bottom and base makes the stove air-tight below the grate, which is the only true fire keeping principle.

It will be as good a fire keeper twenty years hence as it is today.

The Hot Blast Air-Tight Florence will heat twice the space that can be heated by any other stove on earth at one-half the cost.

The only perfect floor heater that is or has ever been made.

This Article taken from the Brief of the United States Circuit Court, Northern District of Ohio, Western Division.

In this case Mr. Howard was the complainant against manufacturers who tried to use the Howard Combustion Damper and Gas Consuming Device in their stoves.

Mr. Howard's patents have been sustained, and the following was taken, word for word, from the court brief, and is considered one of the strongest statements ever made concerning a stove.

The patent in suit accomplished what had long been sought by inventors and by the public, viz.: in the terms of the patent (lines 43-48, p. 1, specification C. R., after p. 216):

"To provide a construction of stove in which the air is heated to such degree and introduced and mingled with the gases as they rise from the fuel in such quantity that the practically complete combustion of those gases as well as the smoke is insured."

The evidence in this case, as it did in the former litigation, shows conclusively that the Howard stove accomplishes with remarkable simplicity this long-sought and most desirable object, at once effecting great economy in fuel and converting to heat what had before been discharged in the form of smoke and soot. No prior device, exhibiting the construction here shown and claimed, has been discovered, nor does it appear that any of the prior exhibits are capable of producing this result. So far as appears, none of those pressed by defendants are in use.

Mr. Howard Pointing to the Combustion Damper.

The Searchlight Burns the Gases that were never utilized in the history of the burning of anthracite coal until the introduction of the Searchlight.

The Searchlight Will Heat Three Times the Space, has twice the life, and will take a ton less of hard coal when the same amount of heat is taken into consideration than any base burner on earth.

Has 7,591 Square Inches of Radiating Surface, four times more direct radiating surface than the average base burner.

The Searchlight Rolling Top (see picture) does away with the average top, which not only makes a great deal of noise, but covers up a large amount of heating surface.

The Searchlight Will Hold Fire 7 Days and 7 Nights with one filling, and will do the same 25 years from now.

Fire Pot Guaranteed to Last 25 Years. The fire pot is so constructed that the heat is radiated to the floor for a space of five feet around the stove. Most stoves heat under the stove, and are cat warmers.

Twenty-five Reasons Why the Searchlight is the greatest stove on earth. All will be explained in a practical way by Mr. Howard. Be sure and attend the demonstration, or send for booklet.

The recent elections indicate that Socialism will play a prominent part in the coming elections. A few days ago two foreigners discussed politics in a local restaurant. One of them, who claimed to have helped to elect the Socialist mayor of Milwaukee, told the other one that Socialism had gained over eighty per cent in the last elections, and that the Socialists would probably elect a president next time. The fact is Socialism is only rampant in large cities where there is a large element of foreigners and factory workers. The bone and sinew of the American people—the business men, the farmers and professional men are far from embracing Socialism—a beautiful but idle dream. Getting something for nothing is a big drawing card always and everywhere especially among the toilers. Socialism is well defined as a system for universal justice with a secret expectation of loot.

There is nothing that calls attention and draws people to a town equal to a good newspaper. In order for a man to make a good newspaper he must have the patronage of the people among whom he lives. If he has halfway support it stands to reason that he must make a poorer paper, and in doing this every man in the town and surrounding country has to bear a portion of the loss. For this reason if for no other, the man who tries to make a good newspaper should have the support of his own people all of whom reap as much benefits from its efforts as he does himself.

The interest taken by the Bourbon Democratic press and dope writers to encourage the "Progressive League" so called, at Richmond, is truly touching. Yet they would have us believe that this league is a true Simon pure Republican body, stripped and cleansed of all the sins that beset that party in the past. To split and divide the Republicans is the last and only hope of the state Democracy, and their Wiggling and hypocritical pretense of favoring a progressive movement are pitiful. —Connersville News.

The principal thing the holders of hunting licenses find in their trips to the woods these days are signs: "Game preserves," "No hunting on this Farm," etc. Great sport we should think.

It is quite a revelation to find there are many trusts, since the government has started to put them out of business. The Harvester trust has been fined and "ousted" from Missouri.

One great trouble in securing a jury in the McNamara cases at Los Angeles is the failure to find twelve men who do not read the papers. Where is the man nowadays that don't read the papers and keeps posted on local current events? Looks as if jury service is merely a premium on ignorance. Real good sense would seem to be that men who can not or do not read the events of the world around them are unfit for jury duty.

Indiana is declared in the "turkey belt." The Eastern States now depend upon Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky for their Thanksgiving and Christmas turkeys. What would these United States be if it were not for the good old Hoosier State?

Senator LaFollette's autobiography now running in one of the magazines, observes the Marion Chronicle, tells how he economized while a member of congress by permitting his wife to be his private secretary, and, presumably, paying her the salary the government provides for such an assistant to a congressman. The fact is that this is a cheap trick members of congress have been playing for years. That the war against wealth has not proved unprofitable is demonstrated, however, by a news item of this week giving the details of an accident to Senator LaFollette's touring car at Washington, while the mails bring to the Chronicle an offer of free stereotype plate boosting his candidacy for president—an offer presumably being made all over the country at a contemplated outlay of many thousands of dollars. However it is explained that this plate is being paid for, not by Senator LaFollette, but by persons or interests expecting to profit by his election or the defeat for re-election of President Taft.

EDITORIALETTES.

This is one fine day to think of what Indian summer might be.

Judging from the magazines and newspapers which do their shopping early, the usual number of men are going to get fancy suspenders, bedroom slippers and safety razors for Christmas.

They say that people in society are not half as ridiculous as those who are struggling to get in.

We understand that the State Railroad Commission is coming down here. Well, that saves a lot of car fare.

That Italian fruit vender says that a woman-razor combination is too much for him. And if she had been a Turk it would have been worse.

One way to avoid publicity and attention is to become a bridegroom.

One man says that unless we wash the fly specks from our windows he will address a rather impertinent letter to this column. We do not know whether to take that as a threat or a promise. At any rate we are going to let the windows alone for a month or two just out of womanly curiosity.

If there is a newspaper that is a friend of the people it is this, the fireside companion, the friend of the hearth and the home. You will note that it has refrained from saying anything mean about the C. H. & D. station, innocent of its wrongs as it may be. Now is the time to subscribe.

Our notion of a happy evening is to read the want ad column and count the jobs that we don't have to work at. Let's hear yours.

"Foraging," a Vitagraph film, will be the first picture at the Princess tonight. It represents how a man in high position remembers old friends, whether they have been successful or not. The story deals with a man, who is down and out and steals a loaf of bread. He is brought before a judge, who recognizes him as an old friend and pays for the bread and shortly has the unfortunate man on his feet again. The other film is an Essanay comedy-drama, "The Wrong Glove." The special Saturday night attraction will be "The Battle of Trafalgar." It is said to be a thrilling picture representing in detail the famous battle of Trafalgar.

The Portola offers for tonight as the first picture "The Little Cripple." It is a touching story of the tenement district for a large city and is said to be instructive as well as a dramatic story "The New York State Barge Canal" is an educational film dealing with an interesting subject. The attraction tomorrow and Saturday nights will be "The Colleen Bawn" a feature Kalem picture made in Ireland. The picture is in three reels and follows the story of the same title very closely with the exception that in a number of instances the picture portrays events to which the dialogue merely alludes. In those instances the picture tells the story with greater clearness. Miss Barbara Schmidt of New Castle will sing both nights.

"The Escaped Lunatic" no doubt would think you were one yourself if he had reasoning and seeing powers, but as he is only in a moving picture he can't tell what he ought to think when he hears the way you laugh at the Palace tonight while he is trying to entertain you. It is one of Edison's greatest comedies. The other film is "The Sheepman's Triumph" and is a story of a war carried on between the sheepmen and cattlemen with a pretty little romance inter-

Looting the Family Purse

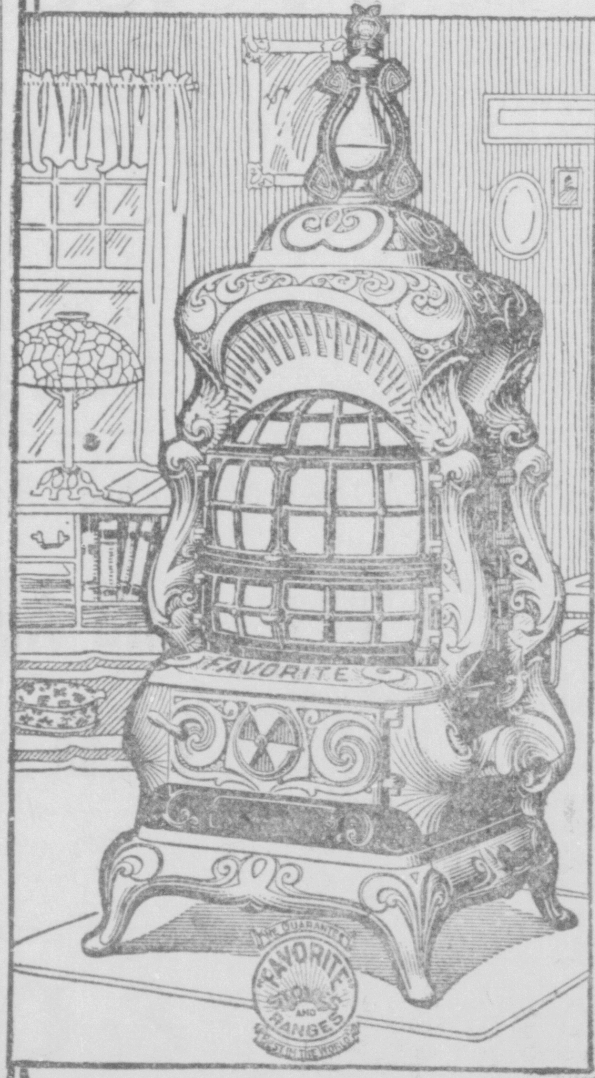

When you once pay the bill for a table or bed, the matter is closed as far as expense is concerned.

But with a stove, the first cost is only a beginning---a trifling amount when you consider the cost of the fuel that stove will consume during its lifetime.

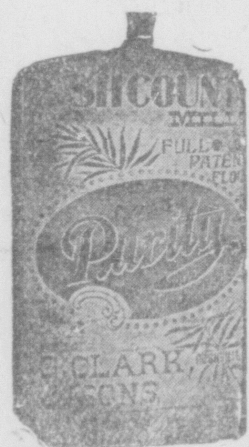

There are a lot of heating stoves that loot the family purse---burn twice as much fuel as a FAVORITE BASE BURNER would require to do the same amount of work.

The Favorite saves one-half on coal bills and throws out more heat. There is no other Base Burner like it, for the features that make it such a wonderful and economical heater are patented.

Don't put up with the wastefulness and extravagance of a cheap stove. Buy a FAVORITE BASE BURNER. It will save you money every day it is in use, and bring such comfort and satisfaction, too.

A remarkable and most valuable feature of the new system of Cooking in Paper Bags is its entire freedom from special mechanical appliances. Any stove, any oven, will do; any fuel will do—wood, coal, gas, oil or electricity. The special paper bag (furnished at very moderate cost) and a few metal paper clips, such as business men use in their offices—and which are sold wherever office supplies are sold—seem to be about all the equipment required. The simplicity of the system is one of its points. Full particulars in descriptive articles and practical receipts for cooking of every-day meals in paper bags is being published every day in The Chicago Daily News.

The young man laughed and shook his head.

"No; I'm a telegraph operator. But the wife and I decided to take a two-years' vacation, and . . . here we are. But the time's about up. I'm going back into the office this fall after I get the grapes off."

As Daylight listened, there came to him a sudden envy of this young fellow living right in the midst of all this which Daylight had traveled through the last few hours.

"What in thunder are you going back to the telegraph office for?" he demanded.

The young man smiled with a certain wistfulness.

"Because we can't get ahead here. . . . (he hesitated an instant), and because there are added expenses coming. The rent, small as it is, counts; and besides, I'm not strong enough to effectually farm the place. If I owned it, or if I were a real husky like you, I'd ask nothing better. Nor would the wife." Again the wistful smile hovered on his face. "You see, we're country born, and after bucking with cities for a few years, we kind of feel we like the country best. We've planned to get ahead, though, and then some day we'll buy a patch of land and stay with it."

Daylight could not persuade himself to keep to the traveled roads that day, and another cut across country to Glen Ellen brought him upon a canyon that so blocked his way that he was glad to follow a friendly cow-path. This led him to a small frame cabin. The doors and windows were open, and a cat was nursing a litter of kittens in the doorway, but no one seemed at home. He descended the trail that evidently crossed the canyon. Part way down, he met an old man coming up through the sunset. In his hand he carried a pail of foamy milk. He wore no hat, and in his face, framed with snow-white hair and beard, was the ruddy glow and content of the passing summer day. Daylight thought that he had never seen so contented looking a being.

"How old are you, daddy?" he queried.

"Eighty-four," was the reply. "Yes, sirree, eighty-four, and spryer than most."

"You must a' taken good care of yourself," Daylight suggested.

"I don't know about that. I ain't loafed none. I walked across the plains with an ox team and fit Indians in '51, and I was a family man with seven youngsters. I reckon I was as old then as you are now, or pretty nigh on to it."

"Don't you find it lonely here?"

The old man shifted the pail of milk and reflected.

"That all depends," he said oracularly. "I ain't never been lonely except when the old wife died. Some fellers are lonely in a crowd, and I'm one of them. That's the only time I'm lonely, is when I go to 'Frisco. But I don't go no more, thank you 'most to death. This is good enough for me. I've been right here in this stood a rough, unpainted cabin, the wide veranda of which, with chairs and hammocks, advertised an out-of-doors bedroom. Daylight's keen eyes took in everything. The clearing was irregular, following the patches of the best soil, and every fruit tree and berry bush, and even each vegetable plant, had the water personally conducted to it. The tiny irrigation channels were everywhere, and along some of them the water was running.

Ferguson looked eagerly into his visitor's face for signs of approbation.

"What do you think of it, eh?"

"Hand-reared and manicured, every blessed tree," Daylight laughed, but the joy and satisfaction that shone in his eyes contented the little man.

"Why, d'ye know, I know every one of those trees as if they were sons of mine. I planted them, nursed them, fed them, and brought them up. Come on and peep at the spring."

"It's sure a hummer," was Daylight's verdict, after due inspection and sampling, as they turned back for the house.

The interior was a surprise. The cooking being done in the small, lean-to kitchen, the whole cabin formed a large living-room. A great table in the middle was comfortably littered with books and magazines. All the available wall space, from wall to ceiling, was occupied by filled bookshelves. It seemed to Daylight that he had never seen so many books assembled in one place. Skins of wild-cat, 'coon and deer lay about on the pine-board floor.

Daylight found himself charmed and made curious by the little man. Why was he hiding away here in the chaparral, he and his books? So it was, when between them they had washed and wiped the dishes and put them away, and had settled down to a comfortable smoke, that Daylight put his question.

"Look here, Ferguson. Every since we got together, I've been casting about to find out what's wrong with you, to locate a screw loose somewhere, but I'll be danged if I've succeeded. What are you doing here, anyway?"

Ferguson frankly showed his pleasure at the questions.

"First of all," he began, "the doctors wound up by losing all hope for me. Gave me a few months at best, and that, after a course in sanitariums and a trip to Europe and another to Hawaii. They tried electricity and forced feeding and fasting. I was a graduate of about everything in the curriculum. They kept me poor with their bills, while I went from bad to worse. The trouble with me was twofold; first I was a born weakling; and next, I was living unnaturally—too much work, and responsibility and strain. I was managing editor of the Times-Tribune in San Francisco, and I wasn't strong enough for the strain. Of course my body went back on me, and my mind, too, for that matter. It had to be bolstered up with whisky, which wasn't good for it any more than was the living in clubs and hotels good for my stomach and the rest of me. So I quit, quit everything, absolutely, and came to live in the Valley of the Moon—that's the Indian name, you know, for Sonoma Valley. I lived in the lean-to the first year; then I built the cabin and sent for my books. I never knew what happiness was before, nor health. Look at me now and dare to tell me that I look forty-seven."

"I wouldn't give a day over forty," Daylight confessed.

"Yet the day I came here I looked nearer sixty, and that was fifteen years ago."

They talked along, and Daylight looked at the world from new angles. Here was a man, neither bitter nor cynical, who laughed at the city-dwellers and called them lunatics; a man who did not care for money, and in whom the lust for power had long since died.

It was not until ten o'clock that Daylight parted from Ferguson. As he rode along through the starlight, the idea came to him of buying the ranch on the other side of the valley. There was no thought in his mind of ever intending to live on it. His game was in San Francisco. But he liked the ranch, and as soon as he got back to the office he would open up negotiations with Hillard.

The time passed, and he played on at the game. San Francisco's attitude toward Daylight had undergone a change. While he, with his slashing buccaneer methods, was a distinct menace to the more orthodox financial gamblers, he was nevertheless so grave a menace that they were glad enough to let him alone. He had already taught them the excellence of letting a sleeping dog lie.

Dede Mason was still in the office. He had made no more overtures, discussed no more books. He had no active interest in her, and she was to him a pleasant memory of what had never happened, a joy, which, by his essential nature, he was barred from ever knowing. Yet, while his interest had gone to sleep and his energy was consumed in the endless battles he waged, he knew every trick of the light on her hair, every quick definite mannerism of movement, every line of her figure as expounded by her tailor-made gowns. Several times, six months or so apart, he had increased her salary, until now she was receiving ninety dollars a month. Beyond this he dared not go, though he got around it by making the work easier. This he had accomplished after her return from a vacation, by retaining her substitute as an assistant. Also, he had changed his office suite, so that now the two girls had a room by themselves. The more he saw of her, and the more he thought he knew of her, the more unapproachable did she seem to him. But since he had no intention of approaching her, this was anything but an unsatisfactory fact. He was glad he had her in his office, and hoped she'd stay, and that was about all.

Daylight did not improve with the passing years. The life was not good for him. He was growing stout and soft, and there was unwonted flabbiness in his muscles. The more he drank cocktails, the more he was compelled to drink in order to get the desired result, the inhibitions that eased him down from the concert pitch of his operations. And with this went wine, too, at meals, and the long drinks after dinner of Scotch and soda at the Riverside. Then, too, his body suffered from lack of exercise; and, from lack of decent human associations, his moral fibers were weakening. Never a man to hide anything, some of his escapades became public, such as speeding, and of joy-rides in his big red motor car down to San Jose with companions distinctly sporty—incidents that were narrated as good fun and comically in the newspapers.

CHAPTER XII.

Instead of returning to the city on Monday, Daylight rented the butcher's horse for another day and crossed the bed of the valley to its eastern hills. As on the previous day, just for the joy of it, he followed cattle-trails at haphazard and worked his way up toward the summits. Coming out upon a wagon road that led upward, he followed it for several miles, emerging in a small, mountain-encircled valley, where half a dozen poor ranchers farmed the vine-grapes on the steep slopes. Beyond, the road pitched upward. Dense chaparral covered the exposed hillsides, but in the creases of the canyons huge spruce trees grew, and wild oats and flowers.

Late in the afternoon he broke through, and followed a well-defined trail down a dry canyon. The dry canyon gave place to one with a slender ribbon of running water. The trail ran into a wood-road, and the wood-road emerged across a small flat upon a slightly traveled country road. There were no farms in this immediate section, and no houses. The soil was meager, the bed-rock either close to the surface or constituting the surface itself. Manzanita and scrub-oak, however, flourished and walled the road on either side with a jungle growth. And out a runaway through this growth a man suddenly scuttled in a way that reminded Daylight of a rabbit.

He was a little man, in patched overalls; bareheaded, with a cotton shirt open at the throat and down the chest. The sun was ruddy-brown in his face, and by it his sandy hair was bleached on the ends to peroxide blonde. He signed to Daylight to halt, and held up a letter.

"If you're going to town, I'd be obliged if you mail this," he said.

"I sure will," Daylight put it into his coat pocket. "Do you live hereabouts, stranger?"

But the little man did not answer. He was gazing at Daylight in a surprised and steadfast fashion.

"I know you," the little man announced. "You're Elam Harnish—Burning Daylight, the papers call you. Am I right?"

Daylight nodded.

"Well, I'm glad I wrote that letter this afternoon," the little man went on, "or else I'd have missed seeing you. I've seen your photo in the papers many a time, and I've a good memory for faces. I recognized you at once. My name's Ferguson."

"Do you live hereabouts?" Daylight repeated his query.

"Oh, yes. I've got a little shack back here in the bush a hundred yards and a pretty spring, and a few fruit trees and berry bushes. Come in and take a look. And that spring is a dandy. You never tasted water like it. Come in and try it."

Walking and leading his horse, Daylight followed the quick-stepping, eager little man through the green tunnel and emerged abruptly upon the clearing, if clearing it might be called, where wild nature and man's earth-scratching were inextricably blended. It was a tiny nook in the hills, protected by the steep walls of a canyon mouth. Here were several large oaks, evidencing a richer soil. The erosion of ages from the hillside had slowly formed this deposit of fat earth. Under the oaks, almost buried in them,

3d. They work on a new principle. They do not glaze over the service, but they penetrate to the seat of the trouble and draw the germ life from underneath the skin and destroy it. A MAIL CARRIER'S LOAD

Seems heavier when he has a weak back and kidney trouble. Fred Duehren, Mail Carrier at Atchison, Kas., says: "I have been bothered with kidney and bladder trouble and had a severe pain across my back. Whenever I carried a heavy load of mail, my kidney trouble increased. Some time ago, I started taking Foley Kidney Pills and since taking them I have gotten entirely rid of all my kidney trouble and am as sound as ever." F. B. Johnson.

My Corns Don't Hurt A Bit.

Tired, Ailing, Swollen, Smelly, Sweaty Feet, Corns, Callouses and Bunions, TIZ Cures Right Off.

Say good-bye to your corns the very first time you use TIZ. You will never know you have a corn, burn or callous, or sweaty, tired, swollen, aching feet any more. It's just wonderful the way the pain vanishes. Rub the corn—hammer it with your fist if you wish—no more pain after TIZ than if there had never been a blemish on your feet. Doesn't that sound good? Use it! Doesn't it? Then read this.

"The corns on either of my toes were as large as the tablets you make to cure them. To-day there is no sign of corns on either foot and no soreness. It's an up-to-date Godsend.—Sam. A. Hoover, Progress, N.C."

Just use TIZ. It's not like anything else for the purpose you ever heard of. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous excretions which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. TIZ is for sale at all drug stores, 25 cents per box, or direct, if you wish, from Walter Lather Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

FINDS LOST BROTHER.

After reading the newspaper account of the death of George Miller for many years a chef in Indianapolis, F. H. L. Miller, of Spiceland, Ind., who had been separated from a brother who bore the same name more than fifty years ago visited Indianapolis Monday and found the dead man was his kin. Miller was asphyxiated several days ago when a faulty connection in a gas heater caused the fumes to leak into his room.

Of the Japanese factory laborer the average "work life" is short, very few being able to last longer than five years. Hence the rural population hesitates to migrate to the city when country employment is abundant.

The death of Deacon Dan Camp, residing near Lenox, Mass., is announced. It is said he made a small fortune with two yoke of oxen pulling automobiles out of the mire on "Jacob's Ladder road," at $25 a pull.

"Tar Party" Go-Between Will Turn State's Evidence.

WEALTHY DEFENDANT FIGHTS

Everett G. Clark, One of the Shady Bend Men Accused of Stripping and Tarring Miss Chamberlain, Popular Young School Teacher, Declares He Will Give All His Wealth to Keep Out of Jail.

Lincoln Center, Kan., Nov. 16.—In the Mary Chamberlain tarring case, a surprise came when Judge Dallas Grover called a short session of court and Edward Ricord, the barber go-between, was brought in and entered a plea of guilty. Judge Grover reserved sentence on Ricord. It is said County Attorney McCandles and Assistant Attorney General Hawkes have won a victory in securing Ricord's consent to testify against the men he alleges gave him $5 to betray Miss Chamberlain into their hands.

Ricord is a barber, formerly at Beverly, a village near Shady Bend. He was the first man arrested in connection with the tar party prosecutions, and has been in the county jail at Lincoln about three months. It was Ricord who drove Miss Chamberlain to the lonely crossroads where she was attacked, stripped and given a coat of tar. She accompanied him under the impression that she was being taken to a dance. In a statement made after he went to jail Ricord said he deceived Miss Chamberlain to the rendezvous at the suggestion of a number of men of Beverly and Shady Bend and received $5 for doing so. He will be one of the principal witnesses for the state. Everett G. Clark of Shady Bend, accused of being the leader in the attack on Miss Chamberlain, and eight other men, alleged to have been associated with Clark, are to be tried at the present term of court.

Clark is wealthy and influential and has retained as counsel three of the best criminal lawyers in this part of the state. He is quoted as saying that he will spend every cent he has to keep out of jail. The county attorney of Lincoln county, W. W. McCandles, who is prosecuting the "tar party" cases, is equally determined to convict Clark and punish him by imprisonment. McCandles has called to his aid S. W. Hawkes, assistant attorney general of Kansas.

Miss Chamberlain is twenty-six years old and pretty. Her manner is pleasing, and it was this quality, it is said, that caused her to suffer indignities at the hands of men she thought were her friends. When school closed at Beverly, her home, last summer, Miss Chamberlain went to Shady Bend to clerk in the store of L. V. Green. One of the customers, a married man, seemed infatuated with her. His wife noticed this, and there was a meeting of other jealous wives. They plotted her disgrace, and the tar bucket was chosen as the method of punishment.

BEATTIE MUST DIE

Governor Mann Refuses Respite in Case of Wife Murderer.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 16.—Henry C. Beattie, Jr., convicted of the most brutal murder in the history of Virginia, was unshaken by the news that the last possible barrier between him and death had been removed. With only nine days of life left to him he calmly heard the vigorous refusal of Governor Mann to interfere in his behalf, and smiled when told his final hope had vanished and that he must die in the chair for killing his wife. Later, however, his nerve gave way and he broke down and wept.

The governor issued a statement in which he said he sympathized with the father of Henry Clay Beattie, "but," he added, "I believe that Beattie was guilty of the cruel and malicious murder of his young wife." The governor said he had watched the case closely and was convinced that Beattie had a fair trial. "To grant a respite in so plain a case would be to set a precedent, would be to temporize with the law and to encourage appeals to the supreme court with the sole purpose of gaining time. I believe the best way to prevent such crimes as this is to punish them adequately, certainly, speedily."

REINFORCEMENTS

Arabs Rallying to the Turks in Numbers, Eager to Fight.

London, Nov. 16.—An agency dispatch from the Turkish headquarters outside of Tripoli, by way of Tunis, says that if the Turks stand ground they must win. The Arabs are rallying to them in numbers and clamoring for modern rifles. They also are anxious to drill under Turkish officers. Large consignments of rifles are arriving daily. The Mohammedans are liberal subscribers with money and the troops are regularly paid. Food and water is also abundant. A caravan of 400 camels brings supplies every day.

DIVISION OF THE CHINESE EMPIRE

Such a Step Is Threatened By Revolution.

THE SOUTH MAY SPLIT OFF

If Yuan, the New Premier, Be Able to Save the Monarchy Under the Form of a Constitutional Government, the Southerners Are Likely to Insist on a Separation and Set Up a Government of Their Own.

Pekin, Nov. 16.—The official gazette publishes a communication over the signature of Yuan Shih Kai, in which he thanks the throne for appointing him premier, which is interpreted as equivalent to his acceptance.

It is not known whether he changed his mind under imperial pressure or whether his repeated refusals were merely due to the oriental modesty with which the bestowal of high honors is traditionally met. The acceptance materially improves the situation, at least temporarily.

Yuan told friends that he intends to form a cabinet and carry on the government in behalf of the throne as a limited monarchy. He relies upon the support of the provinces, but if any insist upon independence he will not coerce them, hoping gradually to win them to allegiance to the throne. Yuan evidently is doubtful of his ability to uphold the monarchy, being very much aware of the widespread disaffection, and if the present state of chaos continues it is to be expected that he will openly declare for a republic.

All seems now to depend upon the decision of the national convention of provincial delegates shortly to assemble at Peking in obedience to the edict issued Tuesday. If Yuan be able to sway the convention for a monarchy, as it is believed he intends to try to do, the throne will stand, though its wings will be clipped and the parliamentary government will begin. On the other hand, if the delegates be divided and the southerners insist upon a republic, this may be established and the presidency be offered to Yuan. The third possibility is a cleavage of the empire, the north being governed by a limited monarchy with Yuan as premier and the south establishing a republic. It is useless to try to foretell if this will result in the continuance of civil war or if the rebels will acquiesce. There is a belief that if the convention supports the monarchy the court will remove to Jehol, maintaining there a shadowy relic of its dignity in seclusion, while Yuan and parliament will run the government.

The fact that Hsi Liang, ex-viceroy of Manchuria, has been appointed Tartar general of Jehol is construed as an indication that the court is going there in any event. Hsi Liang is friendly both to the court and to Yuan. The happenings of the next few days are certain to prove of the greatest importance to China's future.

The latest report of the busy attitude of Li Yuan Hung and his Yangtse colleagues has it that Li is willing to support Yuan Shih Kai and the parliament, but is not to be reconciled toward the throne.

The Chihli provincial assembly has revolted, which step is taken as significant, as the provinces have been reproaching Chihli for its inaction. Now that the reproach presumably has been removed, the assembly has passed a resolution memorializing the throne to establish a republic. As originally proposed the memorial included a demand for Yuan as president and further demand for the abdication of the throne. The assembly's president persuaded the house to cut out the latter named features.

CAUGHT IN STORM

Girls Whose Father Was Killed Held Five Days by Wreckage.

Fort Smith, Ark., Nov. 16.—Pinioned beneath an immense pile of wreckage with the mangled body of their father since last Saturday afternoon, Miss Amie Rhoads, aged seventeen, and her twelve-year-old sister were found late yesterday three miles west of Peggs, Okla. While driving home last Saturday they were caught by a small cyclone. A falling tree struck the wagon, killing Rhoads instantly. Before the girls could escape from the wrecked vehicle they were buried under an avalanche of wreckage, under which they remained until a searching party found them. Rhoads's head was mashed to a pulp and his neck was broken. The elder girl sustained a compound fracture of the right leg. The younger child's left leg was horribly mashed. Periods of unconsciousness mercifully prevented them from suffering excruciating agony most of the time they were held prisoners under the wreckage. The girls were almost dead when found.

Rock Island, Ill., Nov. 16.—The Rev. W. J. Leach, recently appointed to the pastorate of the Spencer Memorial Methodist Episcopal church of this city, has forsaken the clergy for journalism. Resigning his charge here, he will begin his journalistic career in Peking, Ill., his former home, as a reporter for a local newspaper.

New Palestine Bank Files Second Action Against Company on $5,000 Insurance Policy.

CHARGE IT WAS CANCELLED

A suit resulting from the second robbery of the New Palestine Bank October 20, when $2987.77 was taken, was filed by the bank against the New Amsterdam Casualty Company, which the plaintiff says issued a burglary insurance policy for $5,000 to it several weeks before the robbery, says the Indianapolis Star. The complaint says that the policy was returned to the company to have the names of the insured corrected. While the policy was in the hands of the company the bank was robbed. A few days later, the plaintiffs say, they received notice from the company that the policy had been cancelled October 7. The suit is the second one by the bank against a casualty company. The first one, still pending, was brought after the robbery of the bank last year.
